“ Jim I met back in 2011 as a server from Cracker Barrel. He was married to his beautiful basketball player wife at that time. I had just moved here from Indiana. I had no car and they just happened to live right across the street down the road. So one day they asked me if I wanted a ride home as I was walking. I'll never forget that big ole car they had. Long story short. I was just turning my life over to Jesus and I was one month sober from cocaine and their kindness his soft spoken smiling face always made my day. He inspired me to be my best everytime I saw him He reminded me of my grandpa I lost in 97. and when they learned of my journey to sobriety I was years clean by then. They said I never looked like an addict. I'm a few months from my 9 year mark and my heart is with the family. When y'all say your goodbyes today. Could ya tell him I said I'll see him on the other side. I think he will remember me the yankee from Indiana.. lol I'll miss jim. I already know hes in heaven.
