Comments

“ The first time we met was at a party. We were introduced by our brother Cole Barksdale. He was on the guitar and was killing it. So I joined in with the rhymes and we turned the party into MTV Unplugged. From that moment we were friends. I remember how welcoming he was, it was like you known him for 20 years and not 20 minutes. After that we hung out shared life ideals, music collaborations and a brother like bond. I am thankful to Cole for introducing us, and thankful to God for introducing Justin to all of us. There will be a whole in my heart for you brother, dreams of making it together has now become dreams ff just hearing your voice blare out those awesome notes, that guitar to strum one last tune, because of that all of your friends will work hard to live out the dreams with you looking down on us, we won't let you down my brother.... We will keep your beautiful soul alive forever...til I see you again my brother, my friend....

“ I knew Justin's mother Robin while in Prattville public schools. This breaks my heart, and I know his parents are heartbroken too. Both the Countryman and Killough families have experienced a similar loss way too soon.

Rest In Peace.

“ From the time Justin was little, I knew him. I remember his mother and some small children, including my son, playing pass the bean bag at the YMCA. He was competitive then and it did not stop all the way through to his senior year. Justin was so creative and such a good writer. He was very gifted. He was also an excellent wrestler. He could learn moves and be able to do them well almost overnight. He was one of the best pinners we ever had at Prattville. He pinned many of the top wrestlers throughout Alabama. He just loved wrestling. He was also one of the funniest people I ever worked with. I had to turn my head many times to keep from laughing in front of the group at a serious moment, due to Justin's actions or comments or facial expressions. He enjoyed others laughter; especially if he was the source of it. I will never forget some of our discussions and the time we shared together. I love Justin Killough and will miss him greatly. To Bruce, Robin, Jordan, Lauren, and Robby and family members, we love you all and pray for peace and healing for you all. You were all a great support to Justin all through his life. You all made an impact on so many with all the things you did for Justin and so many other youngsters here in Prattville. You are to be commended for all the hard work you all have put in making Prattville a better place. May God wrap you with His love and mercy and protect you through this tough time. Justin may not be here physically, but his memory is not leaving us.

Love to you all,

“ Praying for you all. He was always such a nice person and if it helps any at all, a friend and I were talking about him and said when we were picked on in school by our other guys around but Justin was always the light to get away from it for me, he was always nice, he never participated. It doesn't seem like much but it is memories we will never forget, he was always someone to lean on and throughout the years was always a dear friend.
