“ Never got to know you, Dakota, but am part of your family. Pray I will also be a part of your heavenly family. We do not always understand why something happens, especially something that leaves us a bit sad. Am sure you talked things out with our Saviour before you left this earthly place, and know He was there to grab you at just the right moment. We have many, many folks who were waiting for you, so have a wonderful time until we all get there, hopefully not in the too distant future. God bless all those you left behind. “ Your my little cousin and I love you and miss you like crazy already. I've babysat you since the day you was born. You and Kyler use to stay at my house playing video games constantly. Yall were more than cousins more like brothers. It's crazy that we had just talked to each other days before you passed, and that hour long conversation just keeps repeating in my head. I wish you would have just come got ink like we talked about it called me like you had before at 3 or 4am waking me up just bc you wanted someone to talk to....I would have woke I always did. Kaylee, Nanie, and Mamaw are not alone. Even though the ones you left behind are hurting more than words can express we will never forget you ever. I wish I new what you were going through that had you thinking this was the only way because I would have done everything in my being to show you differently. I know your free and what ever demons you were trying to fight I know you wont have to fight anymore. I love you koda and will miss you and think of you everyday. RIP punk!!! 🙏🏻🙏🏻 Love, "Susie"
