“ I still can't believe he's gone. I remember when he was a little boy, I used to pretend he was my son. Even though I'm only nine years older than him, I loved him that much. I have to believe all his pain is gone and that he's walking and running in the field of Heaven. If so, I'll put a smile on my face. He is one I'll never forget, one I will always cherish and one whose place in my heart, can't be replaced. My prayers are with you all.

“ I just want to say how sad I was to hear of this. I always loved James (ever since he was little) and have thought about him many times over the years since he got grown. I always wished that maybe one day if I ever ran into him down my way we could have met and talked a little and caught up. My condolences to the family, I know this is rough. Just try to remember him as the sweet and loving person he always was. And "Skinny Laurie" misses him very much!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

“ Words cannot express the sorrow i feel for my nephew and his family and sister and her family at this time. I just want to say that the Lord works in ways sometimes its hard to understand but he has a reason for everything and one day we will understand, just want to share my love and say im here if you ever need anything.
