“ I have been fortunate to share many good times with Jimmy over the past 42 years. From fishing on the Alabama river, watching Alabama football to simply chatting on the porch, he always had great advice to give me. I don't know how we survived some of his fishing trips. In 1988, on one Sunday morning, Jimmy was doing his usual thing reading the Sunday paper and told me about a job opening with Honeywell. Thirty-one years later, I retired with that company. I give all the credit to my friend, Jimmy. Love you, Jimmy and I'll see you again one day.
