“ I just read about the recent death of your loved one. The Bible calls death an enemy and that is certainly how it strikes us, as an enemy. Take comfort in knowing that the loving God who created us did not want us to suffer in tears of pain. “He will actually swallow up death forever, and the Sovereign Lord will certainly wipe the tears from all faces. And the reproach of his people He will take away from all the earth, for God himself has spoken [it].” Isaiah 25:8. My thoughts and prayers are with you in your time of grief. May your memories, as well as these few words, bring you a measure of comfort.

“ Cindy, Cline and the rest of the family--I never got to personally meet Marsha but she encouraged me so much when I was looking for someone to sit with Russ during his final days. You guys have been through so much in the last couple of years--I pray that God will wrap His arms around your family just to remind you that He is still with you through all of the valleys you are going through. Reminds me of the song that says "the God in the valley is the same as the God on the mountains." He will bring you through all of this! Just keep the faith and cherish the love you had for her. She is now at peace and not suffering anymore. I will call you soon and check in with you--maybe we can get together and just spend some time talking and remembering. With love and prayers!!

“ Not to have known someone doesn't mean you cannot feel the pain of the family. She is only away for in your hearts she will remain... Her wok here was done and God reached for her with loving arms...Took her to the beautiful place while holding her in His embrace. I pray for the comfort needed at this time for God says it is ok to grieve when someone we love time comes to leave. I am truly sorry for your loss and may God fill your minds of sweet thoughts, love and all the memories you all have shared.
