“ Having lost my mom the Friday after Valentine's Day, I know the pain you feel at this time, but also the relief that your father is not in any more pain or confusion. I talked to Mr. Miller many times over the past year. He had such a firm handshake for someone his age. He would share with me about his military days, his work history and his memories about growing up. He still wanted to be out working, doing something. He had a very kind spirit. I will miss our talks. I can tell he was a kind, honest man just by the talks we had. I feel blessed to have known him, even for this short time and in this situation.
