“ I have to say this in honor of my daughter Tessa. What she had taught her own mother... Love isn't a perfect. It isn't a fairtale or a storybook and it dosen't alway come easy love is overcome obstacles,facing challenges, fighting to be together,holding on and hever letting go. It is short words, easy to spell, difficult to define, and impossible to live without, love is work, but most of all, love is realizing that every, hour, every minute, every second of itwas worth it because you did it together... Mother and Daughter
