“ Judy, Paulette and I were saddened to learn about Woody's passing. He was a great inspiration. I first met him at Engineering Orientation with the Forest Service about 48 years ago. We found out we both attended Ga Tech but we didn't know each other at the time. Our FS careers took us to different assignments, but we would see each other at meetings and our friendship continued. I am so thankful for the visit you and he made to Tennessee and we met you and had a meal together. We pray for you and all of Woody's family. May you find comfort in knowing where he is and that you can see him again. Blessings. --Charlie and Paulette Lewis

“ I talked to Woody just a few days before he passed. He has been a longtime friend and colleague. Prayers go out to Judy and the rest of the family. Know that Woody was a good man, engineer, and friend. He loved Judy, his family, and his dog Tigger. He will be missed and is in peace in Heaven. Rest in peace, my friend.

“ Judy, we never met but I offer my sincere sympathy for the passing of David your beloved husband. Many years ago I was married to his cousin and still keep in touch with Patty. May all find comfort in knowing a grand reunion is happening in heaven with those who went before him. I too am a widow and find comfort in the following. This has been a favorite of mine since I read the book Wheel of Fortune by Susan Howatch.

I read it in high school and really didn't know what grief was but it spoke to me then and still does.

I think this is why I choose to look at life as a circle. I truly believe that one looks across the circle and the past and the future and the present are all there.

Grief isn't like a train that you catch at the station.

Grief has its own time, and grief's time is beyond time, and time itself...isn't very important. Time isn't a straight line. Time is a circle. Time goes round & round like a wheel & that's why one hears echoes of the past continually---it's because the past is present, you don't have to look back down the straight line, you just look across the circle, and there are the echoes of the past and the vision of the future & they're all present, all now, all forever.

Sincerely,

“ Woody was my friend and mentor. He was always there to answer questions, but be ready to listen cause it might take awhile. This world has lost a bright light. May God be with you and your family.
